OXFORD WINS THE BOAT RACE

CAMBRIDGE HAS THE STYLE, BUT NOT THE POWER.

selves, Leading by Three and a Hair Lengths-Victory a Surprise to the Wise, Who Made Cantabs Favorites.

LONDON, April 3 .- The Oxford University eight oared crew won the sixtysixth annual regatta from Cambridge on the Thames River to-day. At the finish the Dark Blue oarsmen were leading by three and a half lengths and rowing well within themselves, spurred on by the fact that for the first time in four years and the third time in the last minutes 50 seconds.

The result of the dual regatta came as a surprise to the expert watermen along the Thames, who had predicted a victory Cambridge crew a 2 to 1 favorite before the race.

The race was witnessed by the usual throngs, which crowded both banks of the Thames River and the water adjacent to the shores throughout the entire course, thousands coming from London by special excursion trains as well as other adjacent points to witness the greatest intercollegiate athletic contest of the English sporting year. Clear, cold weather with an absence of wind favored the oarsmen and the spectators, and the event was same gala tnat has marked the regatta for the last few years. Houseboating parties were in evidence all along the four and a fraction mile course and the last two miles of the race was rowed between rollid phalanges of pleasure and excursion boats of all classes.

There were very few preliminaries to delay the start and the two crews sent away at 12:37 o'clock sharp from the start off Putney. In the tossup for position Cambridge won river, which was considered the more favorable, being less obstructed and tered in case the water should be scratch ruffled during the race by wind. At the starting gun the Cambridge eight jumped into the lead with a thirty-seven to the oute stroke. For an eighth of a mile Cantabs maintained the quarter of a length lead which they had gained at the start, but both crews were rowing strongly and with excellent watermanship, and it was evident that the race was to be decided in the last mile or so of the contest rather than in the first stretches.

At the completion of the quarter mile, Oxford's eight made a spurt and rapidly pulled up on the Light Blue, and then, appearing satisfied with the experiment, reduced the stroke again, and dropped back to its original position.

In this order the crews proceeded in excellent form for the first half mile, and then the Dark Blue began to hit was the then the Dark Blue began to hit up the stroke in earnest. Cambridge responded, and a desperate struggle ensued, in which Oxford showed the greater power in their drive, and slowly but surely cut down the lead of the Cambridge shell until the boats were on even terms. At Craven Steps Oxford had taken a lead which amounted to a quarter of a length at Crabtree, the first mile mark.

Approaching Hammersmith Bridge he Cantabs made a desperate effort to the Cantabs made and reeded that the Dark Blue had but a few feet advantage passing the point opposite Griffin's wharf. Here Oxford spurted again and regained her quarter length lead. In this order the two eights swept over the course, bending every effort, until the two mile mark had been passed. Here Cambridge made the third attempt to wrest the lead from Oxford and a terrific struggle ensued in which both crews fell off considerably from the excellent form which had marked their rowing up to this point At Chiswick Church, two and a half miles m the start. Cambridge had s drawing up almost even with Oxford

From this point a magnificent struggle From this point a magnificent struggle ensued, both crews rowing side by side and at top speed. Cambridge drew up until the Dark Blue's lead was only a matter of inches and there was little change in this order until Barnes Bridge was reached. With the race three-quarters rowed the Oxford oarsmen called on their erve energy and despite the tremendous forts previously expended rowed with great power, which proved entirely too much for the Cantabs. Shortly after passing Barnes Bridge Oxford had gained a full length, and from that point on was able to increase the lead gradually, until at the finish at Mortlake the Dark Blue was easily two and a half lengths in the van.

Cambridge proved a worthy competitor
all through the race and both crews finished in fairly good form. It was apparent, though, to the rowing experts along the course that the Oxford carsmen, while lacking the finished style of their rivals, d greater stamina and endurance of the constant spurting in the early part of the race. The Cambridge eight shot its bolt in the last desperate struggle which ended just after the news passed Barnes Bridge and Oxford had succeeded in wresting a lead of one length from the Light Blue. From that roint Cambridge, although sourting from time to time, failed to drive the shell for-ward with the power evident earlier in the race, and it was conceded during the last three-quarter mile of the course that Oxford would win by a safe margin unless an unlooked for accident marred her

Throughout the first faif the Crescents played without their centre halfback and in the second half R. P. McNulty, the Yale varsity captain, was rendered helpless byia collision in front of the opposing goal, but he stayed by his team until the end of the game, being withdrawn from the forward line to left half.

H. J. Charlwood, with a long shot about thirty yards out, tallied first for the Crescents ten minutes after the start, and the second half was begun with the Crescents leading by 1 to 0. Twice the Bensonhurst net was penetrated by H. M. Kerr and W. C. McCleiland, respectively, but neither point was allowed. Finally M. J. Beazley, following up a long kick by L. J. Sutton, Second in Tournament, Has Best Grand Average.

The figures of the games of the sever billiard tournament which was won by Ora when examined thoroughly and the in and out playing of some of the contestants was remarkable. They show too that while Morningstar won all six of his games he did not make the best grand average, as both Sutton and Slosson did better. Neither George Sutton's grand average was the He scored 2,990 points in 130 innings and his average was 23. In five out of the six of his games he ran more than 100, and it was in the game which he won from Slosson that he did not pass the century His best run in the tournament was made against Cline. Then he ran 148. George Slosson although he lost three games made the second highest average, 20.36. This was because of his fine performance when he played against Cutler and won by a score of 500 to 50, running out in eight he made a run of 225, the highest in the cournament. But for his poor showing against Morningstar, when he scored only 214 points in twenty-three innings, he would have had a much better average. In two of his games, those with Morningstar and Cline, he failed to reach the century mark in a single run. The grand averages are as follows:

COLLEGE FENCING? Popularity of Army and Navy Works Against Other Competitors-International Cross-Country Championship

-Wisconsin Coming to Quaker Relays From what information could be gathered among the college fencers the recen intercollegiate fencing championship was last under the old conditions, and before the spring of 1910 comes around there may be a new association to govern the sport At least, that is the feeling now, and if a new organization doesn't develop to place the foil play of the collegians on a more intercollegiate fencing. test. The preliminary bouts were held in the gymnasium of the New York Turn Verein and only about a dozen spectators put in an appearance. The finals took place at Squadron A Armory and were poorly attended.

It appears the cause of the trouble is the membership of West Point and Annapolis in the association, it being the feeling that an out and out military or naval student has a big advantage over the ordinary college man when it comes to rapier play. "Well, this is pretty slack," said a college man at the Turn Verein, "and it looks any—thing but a college meet; but I suppose it is the beginning of the end, and it is just as well. You see, nobody has the least objection to the army and navy in anything intercollegiate, but on the contrary are proud of their presence. Yet in this very sport of fencing they have advantages which, curiously enough, have partly killed college fencing. First and foremost, the ordinary man at college can in no way compare with the cadet and the middle, who are all the time around small arms, for that is one of their branches of study. Then when it comes to the championship contest they have the most advantage on account of their popularity with the spectators.

re are a few things in connection with rigzag route by which he had to travel took him three days to reach Derby. He was seasick crossing the Channel, so that when he got to his destination on the night before the race he was badly shaken up. On the morning of the race he found that he had no spiked shoes, and at the last minute he had to buy a pair in which he ran. All these things told against the man, but not against his performance. Bouin is not yet 21 years of age, so that he will have pienty of time to show himself later on. England had no trouble in securing the point honors with a total of 32, Ireland being second with 77, Scotland was third with 107, France fourth with 111, and Wales fifth with 187 points.

fourth with 111, and Wales fifth with 187 points.

The first big outdoor fixture in track and field will be the relay races of the University of Pennsylvania on April 24. During the week Wisconsin sent word that she would send a team for the mile relay and that Natwick, the crack hurdler, would accompany the relay team. The appearance of the Badger timber topper will be of some interest especially as he will be likely to meet such men as Shaw of Dartmouth, Howe and Robbins of Yale, Talcott of Cornell and Rand of Harvard. Natwick is the Western champion over the high sticks and has a record of 15 3-5 seconds. Wisconsin will be represented among the big men by Orthoff, the shot putter. ord of 15 3-5 seconds. Wisconsin will be represented among the big men by Orthoff, the shot putter. He won at the conference meet with a put of 42 feet 1 inch, but it is said that the winter's training has benefited him so much that he will do about a yard further on Franklin Field. The entries for the meet closed a few days ago and with great promise of some first rate racing. More than two hundred teams have entered for the college championship and there are 195 individual entries.

RACE AROUND LONG ISLAND Off Sea Gate on July 21.

conditions to govern the race for small sailing oraft around Long Island have been agreed upon by the committee of the Atlantic and New Rochelle yacht clubs and the race will be started from off Sea Gate on Saturday, July 21. There will be four prizes, known as yachting cups, and already several owners have signified their intention of taking part in the race. The course will be from Gravesend Bay to and around South Spit Buoy, thence around Montauk Point, through Long Island Sound to New Rochelle, a distance of 210 nautical miles. The start will be made at 10 A. M. As is usual in long distance races, a simple measurement rule has been adopted, and in this case the over all length is the only measurement used. The race will be open to all boats of 50 feet over all length and under, regardless of rating, enrolled in a duly organized yacht club. The minimum limit of crew is four men, and one additional man must be carried for each 5 feet of measurement over 35 feet. There are no restrictions as to crew, but only Corinthians may steer. small sailing craft around Long Island have measurement over 35 feet. There are no restrictions as to crew, but only Corinthians may steer.

Four prizes are offered for the boats sailing in one class. The entries close July 24 and must be accompanied by a certificate of measurement signed by the measurer of the club through which the boat enters. Entries should be made to the regatta committee of either the Atlantic or New Rochells Yacht clubs. H. E. Boucher is chairman of the regatta committee of the Atlantic Yacht Club and George P. Granbery of the New Rochelle Yacht Club. The owners of the following boats have either entered or have signed their intention of doing so:

Brigand, H. A. Jackson, Jr.: Fearless, B. R. Stoddard; Io, F. A. Marsland; Sakana, Haviland Bros.; Tillicum II., C. S. King; Redwing, M. B. Pendas; Bobtail, R. A. Monks; Hyperion, Frank Maier; Kenosha II., C. W. Voltz; Altair, H. L. Stone, the new Ketch built by L. D. Huntington for Daniel Bacon, and a sloop recently purchased by George P. Granbery. It is expected that the Nutmeg and a number of the "Q" boats will also be starters.

FENCING.

Preliminaries for National Champtonships With Foils, Swords and Sabres. NEW ASSOCIATION TO GOVERN Contests with chielling swords and sabres to qualify for the national championships were in order last night at the Fencers Club. With those to gain eligibility with the foils last Friday all will compete, as well as the qualifiers at Chicago and Boston, for the national titles in the New York

Turn Verein on April 23 and 24. Those placed last year did not have to qualify but got in on their records. Those on the slide with the duelling swords and sabres displayed a mastership of each weapon. There was no restraint in attacking and the intricacies of sword play displayed in a spectacular and convincing way. The ring of the gonglike metal guards on the hilts of the duelling swords was incessant as the thrusts were made and parried. All but Conti and Menna in the duelling swords fenced in the French style. The only clear score was of nine bouts by Delapore, who being eight wins, by the impetuous Post The best of fifteen touches determined each bout with sabres. In one attack Shaw no weapon into six pieces. Grassi had the touch, however, the smashing of the sabre being really due to the steef being tempered jumps, but, as a judge said, there were many raps on the coco. Bartoli beat Shaw 8 to 6 to quality, leaving Shaw and Grassi to fence off a tie for third place. Earlier Grassi had die now for Shaw and he won by 9 touches to 6.

The summary of the matches:
Duelling Swords—A. V. Z. Post, Fencers Club, beat Dr. Adams, Manna, Bowman, Hirsh, Glazzer, Meylan, Lyon and Lawrence. Lost to Conti. Eight wins.
G. W. Delapore, Fencers Club, beat Dr. Adams, Conti, Menna, Bowman, Hirsh, Glazzer, Meylan, Lyon and Lawrence. Nine wins.
Dr. C. T. Adams, New York A. C., beat Conti, Menna, Hirsh, Glazzer, Meylan, Lyon and Lawrence. Lost to Bowman, Post and Delapore. Seven wins.

terday afternoon, defeating H. H. Boyese 15-17, 6-15, 15-10, 15-6, 17-16. At the start Boyesen carried Kidde off his feet. The champion to be made a plucky uphill fight of the first game and the points went to a fatigue.
Persistent effort combined with work and was the first to reach 13 aces. But Boyesen doubled him and at the set of 4 aces went to the front at 14—13. Kidden ever let down, but played the shots as carefully as if only at the beginning of the match. The score was doubled at 14 all, 15 all and 16 all before Kidde forged ahead and won the title and match.

Malcolm D. Whitman and Grenville Clark landed respectively in the final and semi-final rounds of the championship tournament on the courts of the Harvard club yesterday. Clark came near losing a game to Malcolm McBurney, who was runner up to him a year ago. The score of this contest was 15—9, 18—16.

Some surprise was occasioned because J. W. Prentiss forced Whitman, the exnational lawn tennis champion, to the limit of three games. Prentiss took the first game right off the reel at 15—12, playing his spinning shots off the back wall. It was after losing the opening game that Whitman went out after the ball with considerable show of speed. He hit hard and placed at all times brilliantly. The sum mary:

placed at all times brilliantly. The sum mary: Championship—Fourth round—Grenville Clark defeated Malcolm McBurney, 15—9, 18—16. Semi-final Round—Malcolm D. Whitman de-feated J. W. Prentiss, 12—15, 15—13, 15—10.
